
EARLY AMERICAN Lock

1776®

CATALOGUE NO. 19 1964-65

A Lock design is a masterpiece of timeless beauty . . .

Hand craftsmanship in the great New England tradition is a hallmark of the fine furniture fashioned by Lock cabinetmakers. As fresh and appealing today as in colonial times, these exquisitely proportioned pieces re-create the warmth and charm of our country's earliest homes.

Selected northern hard rock maple, one of the most favored native hardwoods, is used in its natural, glowing finish, hand-rubbed to bring out the drama of graining, or painted in quaint Early American colors. All stencilling is done by hand. Skilled artists, long trained in this time-honored craft, painstakingly apply rich golds, silvers, and colors in treasured patterns.

In this catalog are shown coordinated groupings of furniture and accessories for every room in the home . . . every piece a Lock heirloom of the future.

FORMICA®

The expertly-matched plastic laminate tops on many Lock tables and other pieces are your assurance of unfading beauty that will never need refinishing or "touching up". This super-hard, melamine high pressure plastic surface is unharmed by alcohol, foodstains, and all common household mishaps. It will even resist scarring from a lighted cigarette.

Look for These Quality Features That Distinguish

Lock 1776®

EARLY AMERICAN FURNITURE

- For nearly forty years, Lock has been setting highest standards of excellence in the authentic reproduction of colonial design.
- All Lock furniture is constructed of selected, kiln-dried, solid hard rock Northern maple. Sugar bucket accessories are made of finest white pine, in the true New England tradition.
- Every piece is hand-rubbed to a glowing luster which keeps its beauty year after year.
- Drawers are precision dovetailed, center-guided and dustproofed.
- All decorations are hand-applied by skilled artists.
- Painstaking craftsmanship and strict quality controls at every step in the production process give Lock furniture the extra distinction and lasting durability found only in the finest examples of the cabinetmaker's art.
- The Lock pieces you buy today are the heirlooms of tomorrow.
